

Student Self-Assessment

Guiding Question:

How can we use student self-assessment to support learning and empower students?

Step 1 – Research

Together or on your own, watch the videos on student-centered assessment on the Students at the Center Hub. Pay particular attention to the video in which Dr. Heidi Andrade discusses the key components of self- and peer-assessment and reflects on what she’s observed in classrooms.

Step 2 – Reflect

Share your thinking with the team and discuss these questions:

- What student self-assessment and peer-assessment practices would you like to implement to support the classroom learning environment?
- How might these practices benefit student learning and foster strong, trusting, and caring relationships between students and teachers, and peer to peer?
- What are the critical building blocks to make these strategies work well in your school?

| Practices | Benefits for Students | Critical Building Blocks |
